1. § 30(1) of the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1996, provides that the President and the Deputy President are elected by the National Assembly, which consists of the National Council of Provinces (NCOP) and the Assembly of the Republic of South Africa (ARS). The NCOP is composed of representatives from the nine South African provinces, while the ARS is composed of members of the national executive and legislative branches of government.
2. The President of the Republic of South Africa is elected by the National Assembly for a five-year term. The President has the authority to appoint and dismiss the Deputy President and the Ministers of the Cabinet. The President also has the power to grant pardons and to declare a state of emergency.
3. The Deputy President of the Republic of South Africa is elected by the National Assembly for a five-year term. The Deputy President is the second highest office in the country and is responsible for the day-to-day running of the executive branch of government.
